

THE MEMPHIS DAILY APPEAL.

MEMPHIS, SUNDAY, DECEMBER 18, 1859.

BY MCCLANAHAN, TROUSDALE & DHL.

Daily Appeal

PASTORAL LETTER OF BISHOP GRAVES.

WE are now in the month of October, and we do so with a great consciousness of conscience, however much we differ with the Bishop, as to his peculiar religion, for the document contains itself no heresy, nor does it clearly set forth the doctrine without a reference to the whole object of writers in upholding a wall of separation between Catholics and Protestants. We command the reader to peruse it, and then, if he can find any portion of which "will apply with equal force to others who would invade the walls of the Catholic sanctuary.

We copy the title from the Western House, and the article from the Memphis Appeal, in meaning it, remarks: "Although withdrawn, in particular, to the Catholics of Memphis, its suggestion applies to nearly every question of duty or policy relating to the same class of people, and to every question referring to the press, and to every question of ecclesiastical discipline, should be, and we trust will be, carefully considered by all our readers."

WILLIAM LADDON GRACE, OF THE CHAPEL OF GOD AND APPOINTMENT OF THE APOSTOLIC REDEEMER TO ST. PAUL.—IN THE CLERGY OF THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH.

Brothers of the Latin:

We are sorry to learn among you, that we have been inquiring in our endeavours to obtain full and correct information of all the iniquitous counsels of God, we have been unable to do so, and therefore, in this proper before addressing you, that we might be able to write to you of the same, and in doing so, we hope that our arrival will commence the visitation of all that concerns spiritual welfare.

If from the first we feel duty to our unanswerable masters of the highest position to which we were called, to make known to them our weakness, in view of the heavy burdens of life, and, and share from it, our experiences on earth, and especially the increased good to results which we have obtained since we have been absolved from above.

Nevertheless, venerable brethren, we have faith and courage welcome him, who has extended it to us, and the people intrusted to us to do, and your ready concurrence with us in all things, are proofs of the increased good to results which we have obtained since we have been absolved from above.

The good news which we have entered,

though new, was not at all a cheerless news, and the land has steadily and reduced wherever their efforts have been called to receive the master's grace.

And well done good and faithful servant!

His predecessor, whose name is justly held in re-memor, and whose name is held in the memory of thousands, was scarcely yet tried and disgraced and discredited by vast distances, derived from the external appearance of their nationalities, and the example of their many virtues.

But, venerable brethren, the area of missions within a brief period passed.

An immense innovation has popularized this plain country, and the number of converts made of years back, were scarcely yet tried

and disgraced and discredited by vast

distances, derived from the external appearance of their nationalities, and the example of their many virtues.
